LESLIE COCHRAN QUEEN OF AUSTIN

BY VAL ROMNESS

This year for Leslie Fest, some of Leslie's weird friends who dress like him, met to celebrate his birthday. They joined the former Keep Austin Weird Fest, now called Fun Stop Fest! They met Saturday June 23rd on West Cesar Chavez, and paraded with a new mobile "cut out" of his magnet pose. The runners enjoyed taking photos with Leslie like they did when he was on 6th St. Leslie would have been 68.

Happy birthday Leslie! I'm glad you were there to remind police of your fight to protect homeless people from police harassment and about select enforcement!

Echo's of Leslie... a story of Leslie's spirit. As a friend to him I let him "trade" lighters with me. He liked the sticker I had on mine: This lighter stolen from Val.

Although he "stole" it from me, he always left me with a replacement. But it was usually near empty. One time a friend called and said she got my lighter from Leslie! Watch for his doc soon!

trying to catch a white whale. The target isn't specific, like "they bassists," because just about anyone could be a friend. But it's actually a much more limited set of people that are strong candidates to be friends with, and some of those people aren't the people you want to be friends with.

Where to meet new people is easy. Interesting people are everywhere.

Looking for people in a certain age range, someone who has a certain hobby, or who goes to a certain school, can be a good start. But how do you make friends? It might be that you have to take the first move.

Marbles with. The flyer and...

You can't always tell if another person is shy, or not. Somehow, will find. By it might work.

18. I should be able to Google for friends by now. Let's do the real world equivalent of searching the "entire Web." Or something. By the way, the guy who wrote the flyer wrapped it up with "[i]t's very hard for me to find people whose interest[s] match mine. I'm VERY picky when it comes to those I can get along with." Gotta narrow that search somehow.

5. Wife: And I have corrected them all.

6. Husband: Good. We can sleep well tonight.

It was not simply to increase coffee consumption,
alcohol consumption,
soda consumption (to say nothing of pharmaceutical demand...), but also

to decrease water demand
just enough so people would drink coffee, beer, and soda
when they might have otherwise had water.
